Look at what we are up to...

Last week we learned about outer space. Ms. Wiepen found some cool videos online that she showed us. We seen the inside of the International Space Station and learned about how astronauts sleep, use the restroom, work, eat and even how they brush their teeth while in space. We also watched a video of a space shuttle launch. The afternoon class made their very own version of the solar system in a water bottle. It was so much fun learning about each of the planets and various other aspects of outer space. Ms. Wiepen was very impressed when Mrs. Mathews read a book about space this week in library and we could answer all of her questions as well as teach her a little bit about space. Way to go preschoolers!!

This week we learned about weather, although we would have appreciated mother nature to be a little nicer to us rather than dumping more snow on our playground. We read several books about weather and had to determine the type of weather we saw on each page. The morning class learned a rain dance that helped them explore what happens when it rains and the various sounds we may hear depending on what the rain hits. On Wednesday, we studied wind. Each class got to make their own personal windsocks. We laughed hard when we hung them in front of the heater and watched them blowing around!

Dr. Seuss Week

We will be learning about Dr. Seuss this week for Read Across America day and Dr. Seuss's birthday. On Thursday, the afternoon class will join the elementary in fun activities to honor Dr. Seuss. Throughout the week we will be reading Dr. Seuss books. Tuesday we will read, Fox in Socks. Your child is encouraged to wear their silliest socks to school that day!!
